

Contributors to this issue (1/2009)

C. Akça Ataç is Lecturer at the Department of International Relations, Hacettepe University Ankara. She teaches History of Political Thought and International Organizations. Her main research interests focus on European Integration History and Narratives and Theories of Empire. E-mail: caatac@gmail.com

Kinga A Komorowska is a PhD Candidate at Adam Smith Research Foundation, Department of Central and East European Studies, University of Glasgow, Scotland. Her main research interests include: Cohesion policy, policy-making, leadership. E-mail: kinguspl@yahoo.co.uk

Simon Lightfoot is a Senior lecturer in European Politics at the University of Leeds. He has just completed a British Academy/Elizabeth Barker funded research project on the role of the new donors in Central and Eastern Europe. E-mail: s.j.lightfoot@leeds.ac.uk

Martin Vittek completed the MA course in European Union and Development Studies at the University of Leeds in academic year 2007/2008. As a part of the research for this paper, he took part in a short-term internship at the Department of Development Assistance at the Slovak Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

Sharon Pardo is a Jean Monnet lecturer at the Department of Politics and Government and the director of the Centre for the Study of European Politics and Society (CSEPS), Ben-Gurion University of the Negev; Senior Fellow at the International and European Research Unit (IERU), University of Ghent (Belgium). His research interests focus on the legal/political dimension of the Euro-Mediterranean region in general and European-Israeli relationships in particular. He has published widely on these issues and is currently completing a book on Euro-Israeli relations, Rowman & Littlefield Publishers, forthcoming 2009. E-mail: pardos@bgu.ac.il

Annelin Andersen is a PhD Candidate at the Centre for European Studies at the University of Limerick, Ireland. Her main research interests include Public opinion to European integration in Central and Eastern Europe, quantitative and comparative research methods, and impact of EU issue on domestic politics. E-mail: Annelin.andersen@ul.ie