

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE (1/2010)

Dana Hellová is a doctoral student at the Department of Politics and European Studies, Faculty of Arts, Palacký University in Olomouc, Czech Republic. The main research interests include elites and political leadership. Email: dana.hellova@upol.cz

Otto Eibl and Barbora Petrová are the academic researchers at the Faculty of Social Studies, Masaryk University, Brno. Their research interests include political communication, rational choice theory and political marketing. Otto Eibl has been a researcher at the Institute for Comparative Political Research, in the section Electoral Systems and Levels of Governance since January 2005. Email: eibl@fss.muni.cz, petrova@fss.muni.cz

Tereza Nedorostková is a doctoral student at the Department of Politics and European Studies, Faculty of Arts, Palacký University in Olomouc, Czech Republic. The research is focused on human rights and development of civil societies within undemocratic regimes. Specific area of interest is Latin America. Email: tereza.nedorostkova@clovekvtisni.cz

Michal Šabatka is doctoral student at Department of Political Science Faculty of Social Studies, Masaryk University. His research interest is focused on contemporary political Catholicism, decline of democratic regimes, politics of Spain, Church and State relations. Email: michal.sabatka@seznam.cz

Lubomír Billy is a doctoral student at Faculty of International Relations, University of Economics, Bratislava, Slovak Republic. His research has been focused on migration, Slovak politics, EU structural funds. E-mail: lubomir.billy@euba.sk

Ondřej Filipec is a doctoral student at the Department of Politics and European Studies, Faculty of Arts, and a student of master degree at Faculty of Law at the Palacky University in Olomouc, Czech Republic. His research interests are focused on the WMD issues and European Union. Author is currently writing a Ph. D. thesis about REACH. Email: ondrej.filipec@upol.cz

Radoslav Štefančík is an Assistant professor, Department of Political Science, University of Ss. Cyril and Methodius, Trnava, Slovak Republic. His research interests are migration and integration policy, political parties, political marketing. Email: radolist@yahoo.de