

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE (2/2010)

Pavel Šaradín is a Associate Professor of Political Science at the Department of Politics and European Studies, Faculty of Arts, Palacký University in Olomouc, Czech Republic. His research interests include the political system of the Czech Republic, electoral studies and voters' behavior. Email: pavel.saradin@upol.cz

Dana Hellová is a doctoral student at the Department of Politics and European Studies, Faculty of Arts, Palacký University in Olomouc, Czech Republic. The main research interests include elites and political leadership. Email: dana.hellova@upol.cz

Matthew Ch. Rees is a PhD candidate at the Department of International Relations and European Studies at Masaryk University in Brno. His His research interest is focused on europeanization, interest-group politics and political philosophy. Email: rees@mail.muni.cz

Monika Brusenbauch Meislová is a Ph.D. student at the Department of Politics and European Studies at Palacký University in Olomouc. The main research interests include foreign development cooperation, europeanisation of Czech foreign development cooperation policy, non-governmental organisations. Email: brusenbauch.meislova@email.cz

Petr Voda is researcher at the Institute for Comparative Political Studies; Ph. D. candidate at the Department of Political Science, Faculty of Social Sciences and at the Department of Geography, Faculty of Sciences, all at the Masaryk University in Brno, Czech Republic. He is interested in electoral behavior and electoral geography and is currently writing a Ph.D. theses about electoral behavior in the V4 and electoral geography of the Czech Republic. Email: pvoda@fss.muni.cz

Ivan Vukovic is a PhD candidate at the Central European University (Working title of the doctoral dissertation: "The post-communist political transition of the Western Balkans: Croatia, Montenegro, and Serbia between Yugoslav past and European future") and a teaching assistant at the Faculty of Political Science of the University of Montenegro. His research is focused on Post-Cold War democratization, hybrid political regimes, Central/Eastern European politics and the Western Balkans region. Email: vukovic_ivan@ceu-budapest.edu

Tereza Nedorostková is a doctoral student at the Department of Politics and European Studies, Faculty of Arts, Palacký University in Olomouc, Czech Republic. The research is focused on human rights and development of civil societies within undemocratic regimes. Specific area of interest is Latin America. Email: tereza.nedorostkova@clovekvrtisni.cz